"The compositions mirror the restless, yet still measured surge of the sea, reverberating with sparkling synth notes and driving drum beats, before diving to crepuscular depths bathed in hushed synth and occasional strings, piano, or acoustic guitar."

Welcome!! Welcome!!

"Been a while" would be an understatement. But here we are once again...same as it ever was. Lots and lots of stuff in this guide. Some brand new titles; some highlights of those over this past year; and a number of deletions all wrapped up and ready for your perusal.

Burnside Distribution is based in Portland where Fred and Toody Cole and Dead Moon are a highly revered institution. We've had a couple of Dead Moon titles over the years and now we have one of the precursors to that band. King Bee was a Fred Cole trio in the late 70s post-Lollipop Shoppe and Weeds but predating The Rats and ultimately Dead Moon. The origins of a sound and a movement are a fascinating experience. Check out the King Bee LP and CD for this Fred Cole sound genesis.

As long as we are on the Portland scene, let me point out the availability of several Poison Idea that were released this year as well as the very first solo album by Jerry A. Lang, frontman of PI. With From The Fire Into The Water, Jerry A. has kicked out a slug of collaborations with the likes of Soft Kill, The Ransom, Jenny Don't and The Spurs, Crime Scene and more along with a hitherto unreleased Poison Idea track. Let us also throw in a plug for his three volume Black Heart Fades Blue books which detail the ups and downs ad ups again of his life. Tough but inspiring---check your local bookstore.

Did I mention Portland? The local Little Cloud Records label has just dropped a 25 year old unreleased Dandy Warhols full-length as well as a nice Holiday 45 on red/green vinyl. Expect more to come in the months ahead from this label.

Eight years ago, we made the first Low Roar album (self-titled Low Roar) available to you. Over the years, we've had a few more including a new one earlier this year. WE also have just taken receipt of the CD version of their third album from 2017, Once in a Long, Long While, which we had not carried in the past. The vinyl version should arrive at some point next year due to the vagaries of the record pressing world as it is these days. And let's take a moment to mourn the passing of Low Roar frontman Ryan Karazija who unexpectedly left us in October. Rest In Peace old friend.

How many times have you heard us use the phrase "It's All About The Kids!" We get it, sorta like the proverbial broken record except for one thing---it is INDEED all about the kids. Pyramids may rise and fall but one thing is for certain, we here at bdc believe in children's music. We started the year with a release by Jared Mees and his daughter July. Under the guise of Triple Rainbow, You Are Magic emerged with 15 new songs by the founder of Jared Mees & The Grown Children and his (now) ten year old. In addition to this title, we have new ones from stalwarts Kira Willey, Brady Rymer and the Little Band That Could and Young Folk (NEEDTOBREATHE's Josh Lovelace).

There you have it. Some things old; some things new; and even something Blues. Until the next time.

Your friends at bdc...

Matt the Electrician, We Imagined An Ending

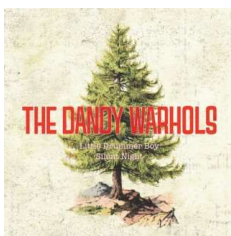

Matt the Electrician's new studio album, We Imagined An Ending, was produced by Tucker Martine. The end result sounds both unlike any other album he has made to date and like quintessential Matt the Electrician: eclectic but inviting, adventurous but cozy, and buoyed by a disarming sense of whimsy that belies the earnest pangs of loss and heartbreak lingering around the edges and between the lines. Of the first single, "Home Again", Rolling Stone says, "The guitars are Big Star bright, the harmonies choir-like, and Matt's own delivery a jolt of clarity in a cacophonous world. It's a journey to zen, in just under four minutes."

Kelley Hunt, Winter Soulstice

Blues/Roots/Americana singer-songwriter, keyboardist Kelley Hunt delivers this extraordinary holiday release featuring her unique arrangements of songs she grew up with, some old favorites and new music of peace and unity. Recorded in Kansas City the album has that KC feel and ranges wide - from the stunning original ballad "Ancient Bell" to piano blues on the suggestive "You You You" to a horn driven piano boogie romp on "Auld Lang Syne". Hunt leads three gospel voices throughout on this seasonal tour de force.

INSTRUMENTAL

Jamie Stillway, Lullaby For A Stranger

In the fall of 2019, Jamie Stillway moved into a 196 sq. foot cabin on an island in the Puget Sound without internet. From this quiet place, her new album Lullaby for a Stranger was born. The instrumental guitar album is inspired by a true story of a journey, one that took place 70 years ago when a pregnant woman made a solo drive from Minnesota to Oregon to deliver her unborn daughter and give her up for adoption. That baby grew up never knowing her mother, and 30 years later gave birth to her own daughter. And as generational trauma is often a circle without completion, that mother then left her own daughter when she was just 6 months old. That child was Jamie Stillway. In Lullaby for a Stranger, writes a letter in sound that chronicles her grandmother's journey as she imagines it might have been. These are songs of grief, loss, contemplation, and ultimately, beauty. If you have a beating heart, prepare yourself. Lullaby for a Stranger will touch anything you have lost and loved.

PUNK

King Bee, King Bee

More than 40 YEARS IN THE MAKING! Doomtown Sounds, in collaboration with Toody Cole and the surviving members of the band, is proud to present the release of the KING BEE album, containing a dozen unreleased studio and live songs recorded between 1977 and 1981. King Bee was Fred Cole's late 70's band, and their music occupied an important position in Fred's development as a songwriter. This often-overlooked part of Fred's career saw him combining elements of his 60's roots with this new sound called punk rock, and it was this synthesis of styles which led to the Rats, and, eventually, to the creation of Dead Moon.

BYSTS, 'Palace' LP

Palace— the second full-length album by BYSTS is the culmination of chilling new and pre-pandemic material — a twilight lament soaked in sexual static and sweat. Both sonically and lyrically prescient as a tongue-in-cheek statement about the fragility of our society. BYSTS is a duo, composed of Bryan Holbrook and Stefanie Marlow, began releasing singles in September of 2019 following the release of their EP Dreamland -- listed in GhettoBlaster's Best of 2019. Palace is a product of two years in the making and was finalized in the Winter of 2020, released digitally in November 2021, and now remastered for vinyl.

The Dandy Warhols, The Black Album

Riding off the debut hype of 1995's Dandys Rule Ok, four Portland natives found themselves spinning into an unknown. Bigger budgets meant bigger expectations, and The Dandy Warhols didn't want to sacrifice their lipsticked sneer by bowing down to the powers that be. Knobs were turned into the red and chemical hors d'oeuvres were served around the clock with the intent of pushing the mselves to uncharted waters. They even got a trumpet to feed back. But we all know the story. The label and the band unanimously voted to hit the reset button and these fabled demos collected dust for nearly a decade, but the sound of these scuzzy recordings have seeped into a new generation of garage rock bands who prefer a little noise in the cracks of their harmonies. Now, for the first time ever, the songs are getting released on vinyl. It's about damn time.

ROCK/POP

Tom Dyer & The True Olympians, Olympia: A True Story

Olympia: A True Story, a 40-song, 47 track, 3-CD album with 80-page book, is a loving ode to Olympia, Washington. It tells the story of Olympia going back 2 million years, with over 100 guest Olympia musicians. Recorded over 4 years thru the pandemic, it is Tom Dyer's usual heady brew of musical eclecticism writ large. It is monumental. This is the tale of the greater Olympia area told through the lens of a third-generation Olympian who left town after graduating from Olympia HS in 1971, returning in 2016. This is not any sort of complete history; it is a collection of sonic sketches reflecting the band's particular take on the many-headed beast that is Olympia. They hope their little entertainment will inspire people to dig deeper into the story of their hometown. They will be donating a portion of their proceeds to the not-for-profit Olympia Arts and Heritage Alliance.

Los Mundos, Las Montañas

Monterrey's Los Mundos are dropping their fourth studio album in five years, and their seventh overall release. It might not seem like much on paper, but when you factor in how many records some of their contemporaries have released in the same period it's very impressive. The duo, comprised of Luis Ángel Martínez and Alejandro "Chivo" Elizondo, have slowly built one of Mexico's most consistent discographies. Hearing their sound evolve since their inception in 2011 is refreshing. Their brilliant eponymous debut wears its shoegaze influences on its sleeve. Las Montañas is not a concept album, but it's presented as journey, with many songs bleeding into the next through sonic explorations. At the same time, this is one of the most eclectic releases in Mundos' discography, where Sabbath riffs collide with weird experiments and into alternative rock territory. This album is pressed on aqua blue mix 140 gram vinyl and has a download card.

Low Roar, Once in a Long, Long While

Once in a Long, Long While... is the third full length album by nomadic band Low Roar, originally released in 2017. It was recorded in Los Angeles, Mexico City, London, and Monnow Valley studio in Wales. The time at Monnow Valley marks the first time that all three members (Ryan, Mike and Andrew) were able to all be in the same room for an extended period time, making it a special album for the band. One reviewer described the album as "flow[ing] between dreamy and floating and more solidly rhythmic tracks," and another described it as having an "atmosphere [that] never permits the sun to linger for very long, shutting it out with harsh, icy synth."

Tajak, La Sombra Del Agua

La Sombra del Agua is the fourth studio album by Tajak. It was recorded in Coatepec, Veracruz, from March till December 2020 during an isolated residency in the cloud forest. The recording process was quite different from previous experiences. Aside from not being recorded in a studio, it was a much more patient, meticulous and intimate process. The main tracks (drums, bass and guitar) were recorded outdoors at the side of the Pixquiac river, which is not very usual. After recording the main tracks, there were several weeks spent afterwards editing, recording overdubs and mixing. In this case a lot more instruments were used than they had used on the previous LPs. They kept the traditional bass, guitar, drums and vocals format, then added lots of layers of texture including field recordings, synths and other instruments like ocarina, sitar, flute, twelve string guitar, thunder drum and tape effects, the last one being a very important and special contribution from Pedro Tirado/Servicios Eléctricos. This double gatefold LP set is pressed on pink and purple 140 gram vinyl and has a download card.

The Veldt, Entropy Is The Mainline To God

The Chavis brothers' roots lead to the church and southern juke-joints, and to music that included gospel, Motown and Pink Floyd. The Veldt formed in the late 80's in Raleigh amongst the legendary North Carolina music scene of the time, performing across Europe and the U.S. with the likes of Throwing Muses, Pixies, Cocteau Twins, and Jesus & Mary Chain. The major labels left the band on their own after the release of their 1994 LP Afrodisiac. 1998 saw the release of Love at First Hate, the band's last LP prior to changing their name to Apollo Heights. The band returned under their original moniker and have been steadily releasing singles and EP's since. With the release of the new full-length, The Veldt is demonstrating that they have no intention of slowing down. This album is pressed on 140 gram clear vinyl.

AMERICANA

Drunken Prayer, The Name Of The Ghost Is Home

The Name of the Ghost is Home, the new album by Drunken Prayer, transcends the bounds of Americana music. For the last year Morgan Geer has been working from his home studio, building on drum tracks initially recorded in Albuquerque, NM at Empty House Studios, home of doom metal bands like OM and Sleep. The end result evokes an ominous acid Western feedback-and-driftwood aesthetic.

The Freddie Steady Revue, Dandy

The Freddie Steady Revue is the name of the new Freddie Steady Krc aggregation. Revue, as the name suggests, is a "catch all" of styles covered by this Texas Music Hall of Famer: Rock, Power Pop, Jump Blues, Tex Mex and more! Leave it to Freddie to introduce the birth of "Beatnik Rock". Freddie has reimagined his "I've Been Framed" as an edgy arrangement including only vocal, drums, bongo drums and very sparse bass and piano. Along with powerful new originals, including two co-writes with fellow former Shakin' Apostles and current Lost Gonzo Band member John Inmon, Freddie has reshaped three of his fave older cuts. Great guitar from John Inmon, Cam King, Bill Kirchen and David Hargraves. Keyboards by Floyd Domino. Horns by Adrian Ruiz and John Mills. It's Dandy!

Michael McDermott, St. Paul's Boulevard

With St. Paul's Boulevard, Michael McDermott has finally created the masterpiece that so many people knew he had in him. The album is bold, broad shouldered, brave and beautiful. Where is St. Paul's Boulevard? McDermott says, "For me...everyone has their own St. Paul's Boulevard. Where we suffered heartbreak and lost our innocence. We learned about our shortcomings and searched to find our place in this world. Where we struggled to nurture love and light in a darkened world. Those days are now just a wash of dreams of drunken and drug fueled nights wandering all over town looking for an angry fix driven by love, lust or some kind of connection." Backed by his incredible band and co-produced with his drummer Steven Gillis, McDermott also brought in some A-listers like Will Kimbrough, David Grissom, and John Deaderick to fill out this "Wall Of Sound" album.

BLUES

Little Freddie King, Blues Medicine

One Of The Last Bluesmen Of His Generation: The unstoppable Little Freddie King (aka Dr. Bones) has certainly paid his dues. The past 82 years he has survived three shootings, stabbings, a near fatal bike accident that pressed his spine, a stomach ulcer doctors believed would kill him, an accidental electrocution, the hurricane that ripped New Orleans apart in 2005, and now a pandemic. On his voice you can feel the trials of life. The music inside is the dose of Blues Medicine that kept him going. King is a country-style blues musician, links to an era when live music poured from the back-of-town nightclubs that were ubiquitous throughout New Orleans' African-American neighborhoods, fostering a musical subculture of downhome Mississippi blues that developed from the ground up in New Orleans. Little Freddie King is an artist who is among the last of his kind. This album is the proof!

CHILDRENS

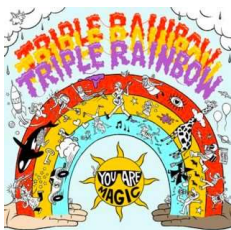

Brady Rymer and the Little Band That Could, That Friday Feeling

Three-time GRAMMY nominees Brady Rymer and the Little Band That Could, renowned for their "instrumentally diverse, harmony-rich rock tracks" (Washington Post) and joyful songs that "go right through the ears and into the heart" (SiriusXM), release their 12th studio album, That Friday Feeling. Recorded in Brooklyn with producer/engineer Ken Rich, the album finds the New York indie rockers tapping into the contagious joy and exuberance of their resonant live shows. In That Friday Feeling, they're busting out of the gate, channeling their energy into a soundtrack to jumping back in and reconnecting with the world. The album also holds learnings from the time we all spent at home: what we gain from slowing down and taking time to appreciate family and the sweet world around us. At its heart, That Friday Feeling is the sound of a band of buddies ringing out like a golden bell, grateful and happy to be making music together again.

Kira Willey, Songs for Peaceful Pandas, Volume 1

With themes of self-awareness and empowerment, the sweet, sunny melodies and rockin' rhythms on Songs for Peaceful Pandas, Volume 1 will encourage young children to tune in to themselves, engage their senses, and move their bodies. Energetic and uplifting, Kira Willey's sixth studio album beams with rich harmonies and catchy, indie-pop production, and encourages listeners to shine their unique light out to the world. Songs for Peaceful Pandas is the first of two albums that complement Willey's popular mindfulness book Peaceful Like a Panda, which has 30 simple, fun activities to help children let go of stress and focus their energy. There's a companion mindfulness exercise in Peaceful Like a Panda for every song on this album—it's the perfect pairing to help calm and focus children in a fun and mindful way.

Michael Cashmore, The Night Has Rushed In

Cloud sparked and star fed, Michael Cashmore's The Night Has Rushed In is a soundtrack and soundscape where each note surprises, as if elevating the ear. This eleven-piece suite of challenging and enchanting electronica fuses moments of sublime chillout with those of near anthemic inspiration. Piano and percussion align with a synthesized chorus as this unique voice heard through fingers sings to the soul, sea and sky. As the powers within rise and shift, this music masters the forces formed deep within us. Listening becomes evolution and transportation too. Each sound flies. This LP is pressed on 180 gram transparent violet vinyl.

FOLK

Freakons, 'Freakons'

Mekons + Freakwater = FREAKONS !! Mekons (beloved, mythical British rabble-raising beast) and Freakwater (also beloved, yet often derided as godmothers of Alt-Country) have allied their sundry song & dance talents for the forces of good. Together they are FREAKONS, and they have joined forces to sing songs about coal mining, of all things. Oddly, Freakwater and Mekons were bound to each other at the start, by the rich seam of Anthracite coal running the width of the Atlantic Ocean from Wales to the Appalachian Mountains. The music and culture of mineral resource extraction, ecological disaster, and worker exploitation are their shared heritage. FREAKONS is the first fruit of this visionary musical union.

CLASSICAL

Los Angeles Guitar Quartet, Opalescent

Opalescent is a newest recording by the Grammy-winning Los Angeles Guitar Quartet (LAGQ) that reflects the luminous nature of music. Dedicated to the memory of Australian composer Phillip Houghton, it features his pieces Opals and Wave Radiance, exploring the synesthetic intermingling of light and sound. Other works include Andrew York's Hidden Realm of Light, shimmering with propulsive grooves and bright splashes of color. Kevin Callahan's Alki Point captures the undulating currents and jazzy undertones of Seattle's early settlement site. In homage to the visionary fingerstyle legend Michael Hedges, Matt Greif arranged Aerial Boundaries, Hedges' ethereal anthem. Chorale by Frederic Hand transforms the guitar quartet into an a capella choir, in a lyrical style both profound and uplifting. Robert Beaser's exquisite Chaconne reveals aspects of its unfolding harmonic pattern within multifaceted shards of light. Finally, Tilman Hoppstock, through his doppelgänger Alan Willcocks, creates an imagined exhibition of Impressionist paintings in his Suite Transcendent.

Indian Creek Delta Boys, Volume 1

The Indian Creek Delta Boys (Garry Harrison, Lynn "Chirps" Smith, Dan Baird, Dave Miller) were one of the key string bands formed during the old time revival of the 1970s. The ICDB focused their musical efforts on performing the old time music traditions of their home region in and around Charleston, Illinois. "The tunes on this album we've learned from senior fiddlers in southern and central Illinois. This record is our way of saying thanks to those who have shared their music with us and of paying tribute to their generosity and talent which has allowed the salvaging of many significant tunes, songs, and ballads from probably extinction. Our objective on this record has been to preserve the historical integrity of the tunes we have recorded on tape from our various sources. We have attempted to present these tunes with as little modification of structure, timing, and melody as possible."

Indian Creek Delta Boys, Volume 2

The Indian Creek Delta Boys (Garry Harrison, Lynn "Chirps" Smith, Dan Baird, Dave Miller) were one of the most important and distinctive string bands formed during the old time revival of the 1970s. While many of the other revivalists focused on the styles and repertoires of the south, the ICDB concentrated their musical efforts on collecting, learning and performing the old time music traditions of their home region in and around Charleston, Illinois. This was the second volume of Illinois traditional tunes and songs recorded by the "Crick Delters" for Davis Unlimited in the summer of 1977. In Volume 2, The band presents pieces learned from noteworthy Midwestern fiddlers such as Bob Rogers, Harvey "Pappy" Taylor, J. J. Abbott and others.

Cahalen Morrison, Wealth Of Sorrow

When I think of Cahalen Morrison, I immediately think of old American masters like John Hartford and Norman Blake along with younger contemporaries like Tim O'Brien. But that would be selling Cahalen Morrison, who splits his time between Scotland and the US, short. While he, indeed, brings these legendary voices and players to mind, Cahalen's take on Americana and its Celtic roots is singular. His songs feel at once as old as the dirt that fed them, and completely fresh. Originally hailing from the high desert of Northern New Mexico, Cahalen has made a name for himself over the past decade touring solo, as a duo with Eli West, or with his band Western Centuries, Cahalen has played shows and festivals all over the world. Equally at home on guitar, banjo, mandolin, singing three part harmony or unaccompanied, he has carved out a place for himself as a unique voice in American music

Anna Tivel, Blue World

In February of 2021, Anna collaborated with Portland musician friends Galen Clark and Micah Hummel to reimagine a collection of songs from previous releases as well as one from an album due out next year. The resulting project, Blue World, is a sparse and winding exploration of loneliness and love played out on keys, percussion, and one quiet voice. "(Tivel) has a keen gift of observation, and indeed, each of these offerings capture specific scenarios that are visual, dramatic and apparently culled from real life situations. Still, there's a transcendent aura that surrounds these songs, mined in large part by Galen Clark's atmospheric keyboards and Micah Hummel's elusive percussion." - American Songwriter

GOSPEL

Various Artists, I'm Believin': Gospel Music In Middle Tennessee

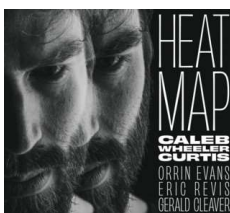

I'm Believin': Gospel Music in Middle Tennessee is a survey of a sampling of the different religious music traditions of the area. Types of song ranging from African American spirituals to an excerpt from the Filipino traditional Pasyon Mahal paint a colorful portrait of intimately shared religious scenes, many of which were recorded in the performers' living rooms. This collection of field recordings provides an enriching window into the diversity that makes Middle Tennessee such a vibrant part of the United States. This recording is just a snapshot of current gospel expression there. Spanish speakers are common in Middle Tennessee; indeed, throughout the South. Some have left the Catholic faith of their native lands to adopt a more common Southern religious practice-Baptist, Methodist or Pentecostal. Middle Tennessee also has a vibrant Filipino community and we've included a religious ceremony not often found outside the Philippines.

Caleb Wheeler Curtis, Heatmap

If one were to represent the levels of communication, interplay and chemistry on Heatmap, the brilliant new album from saxophonist/composer Caleb Wheeler Curtis, the image would glow a consistent bright red. But take into account the range of dynamics, the span between explosive improvisation and sparse atmospheric, and you'd end up with a full spectrum of vibrant colors. Which should come as no surprise given the individual voices and shared histories of a quartet that teams Curtis with pianist Orrin Evans, bassist Eric Revis, and drummer Gerald Cleaver. Released via Evans' Imani Records imprint, Heatmap is another bold step forward for Curtis.

Eubanks Evans Experience, EEE (Eubanks-Evans-Experience)

EEE is two musicians from the city of Brotherly Love, who have decided to turn their personal conversations about life, strife, happiness and all that goes with it, into a journey of sound. One on piano. One on guitar. Emotions, calm and tranquil, an unforeseen moment turns into what can be described as a growling pivot to a clearly different musical point of view. It's a powerful moment when the listener's energy AND the duo on stage experience a collective artistic conversation. Kevin Eubanks: guitarist, poet, speaker, hopeful that the planet is forgiving and allows us to reinvent ourselves as human beings. Music Director for the Tonight Show w/Jay Leno. Honorary doctorates: Berklee College of Music and Redlands University. Orrin Evans: pianist, composer, teacher, passionate about helping people through the power of artistry in various forms. He led the Grammy nominated Captain Black Big Band and co-led the nerve-rattling collective trio Tarbaby.

Monday Michiru, ENSO

Japanese-American songstress Monday Michiru returns with a richly crafted acoustic album that connects her roots in the urban grooves she's come to be known for as well as her background in jazz and classical music, hence the title ENSO which in Japanese means a cycle, as well as to perform. The mostly downtempo collection of originals were penned by the artist with the exception of a spiritual-soul-jazz adaptation of the Japanese folk song Ringo Oiwake which features Japanese koto sensation Asuka. Monday is joined by other guest collaborators such as producer-arranger Gil Goldstein, arranger Miho Hazama, Brazilian cult-artist Lucas Arruda, Philly spoken word poetess Ursula Rucker, and her stepfather Lew Tabackin. Musicians include Monday herself flexing her flute chops as well as on vocals.

REQ'D, Dressing Wounds By Candlelight

Saustex Records welcomes back our old friend Sluggo Cawley of The Grannies, Ain't and legendary Boston noise punk antagonists Hullabaloo with his latest project REQ'D (pronounced "wrecked"). A less chaotic but equally frenetic folk punk is at play here with heart on his sleeve lyrics reflective of the many left turns that a life in the American Underground has handed him. With an all-star cast of friends and rock'n'roll family that includes Dave Scott Flores (Ardent Sons), Anthony Pulsipher (Radio Haiku, Spidermeow, Slow Phase), Richard Stuverud (Fastbacks, War Babies, Pearl Jam), significant other Low Rhodes and Hullabaloo bandmate Thomas Quinn, and, final mix and mastering by Seattle legend Jack Endino (Nirvana, etc.), Sluggo has weaved together something that is adventurous, heartfelt and unexpected. AAIEE, 'See You In Seattle' LP

" After over 40 years together, despite decades of habitual laziness, procrastination, and long periods of inactivity, Seattle band AAIEE has released See You In Seattle on vinyl just in time for the 60th Anniversary of the 1962 Seattle World's Fair. Originally released on CD in 2012, the album is AAIEE's proud and thematically rich paean to the "'Century 21"' fair. Additional "'old Seattle"' references (Boris S. Wort, Jones' Fantastic Museum) complement this epic undertaking. See You in Seattle presents twelve fun & finely wrought tributes to this halcyon era. We hope you enjoy the ride! "Musically, it's all over the map (in a good way), with special recommendations for fans of The Butthole Surfers, Dead Kennedys, Devo, and Camper Van Beethoven ... with the wonderfully giddy 'Gayway', a wink-and-a-nod to the Fair's midway " - The Terrascope "

1990's Seattle band, The Holidays, are at last releasing their 30-year-overdue debut album Big Sexy World. The band made a colorful splash with their 1990 EP, Every Day Is A Holiday, garnering big radio/TV play in Seattle for their song and video "Octopus of Love". Beatle-esque, with boy/girl harmonies and a monster hook, it was a Summertime Pop Classic. Next: The Holidays made what would have been their 1st album, Big Sexy World which captured the bands' knack for killer hooks with a dark twist, while adding a Brass section and some intriguing surprises. Then—they hit the Pause button. Until now. And somehow, this Lost album is coming out at the perfect moment. Big Sexy World is a musical blast from a different time yet sounds fresh and timeless. The Green Pajamas, Forever For A Little While

The Green Pajamas second album in two years is here - Forever For A Little While. Very much a follow-up to last year's excellent, Sunlight Might Weigh Even More, this album again features stunning song-craft steeped in classic Green Pajamas neo-psychedelic production sensibilities. Green Pajamas #1 Jeff Kelly performs almost all of the music on this album himself; long-time Green Pajamas, Eric Lichter, Laura Weller, and Joe Ross contribute as songwriters, each singing their own compositions. Which all adds up to a collection of startling depth and variety, a whole double-album's worth of pop invention laced with 4-string Persian setar, tablas, synthesizers, and Jeff's trusty Telecaster guitars and Rickenbacker bass. Sean Rowe, 'The Darkness Dressed in Colored Lights' 2 LP Set

The Darkness Dressed in Colored Lights is ripe with both dimensions. It was produced by Rowe's friend and longtime collaborator Troy Pohl and here they make the most of their combined ambition and experience. The album's title is taken from its first single, "To Make It Real." "All this darkness, dressed in colored lights. Everything is wrong but you look so damn beautiful tonight." It's a relatable couplet that illustrates the paradox between what once was and what now is, while the chorus howls in response to being lost in the inbetween. "When you lose your way, when you lose your face, when you're paid tenfold for what you used to steal. When you lose that love, when you lose your mind, well then oh my God, you make it real." This is a 3-sided double LP, and side 4 is an etching (artwork).

Al Staehely, Post Spirit Vol. I: 1974-1978

Al Staehely cut his musical teeth in his hometown of Austin, Texas. He made his mark in the musical hotbed of Los Angeles in the 70s and returned to Texas to base in Houston. His songs have been recorded by the likes of Keith Moon of the Who, Jefferson Airplane's Marty Balin and Bobbie Gentry among others. SteadyBoy Records has proudly released recordings of Al Staehely's most recent work. Now, we proudly release his post-Spirit solo recordings of the seventies. Post Spirit Vol I is among the best of the LA rock recordings of the time, and it's a perfect continuation of the work that began with Spirit's iconic Feedback album, for which Al Staehely was the driving creative force. Post Spirit is a classic rock experience, wholly representative of its era in the best way with songwriting that transcends both era and category.

Luke Sweeney, 'Rishi' LP

Inspired by the traumatic birth and unexpected death of his infant daughter in 2018, this 'humble temple of songs' was mostly written in India, where Sweeney's family made a return trip to deliver Rishi's ashes to the Ganges. The album's construction took place over the next two years in a San Francisco apartment studio with longtime collaborators Joe Santarpia (Mac DeMarco) and Roberto Pagano (Tonsstartssbandht) — and features musical contributions from some of Sweeney's bandmates in Healing Potpourri. The rich and heavenly synth tones, breathy instrumental moments, and earthy rhythmic textures carry the emotional weight of a very heavy subject matter with a deft playfulness akin to a group of spirits guiding us through untethered dimensions.

Talkdemonic, Various Seasides

Various Seasides is the long-awaited fifth album from Brooklyn based-composer Kevin Timothy O'Connor's band Talkdemonic. There is a paradoxically Emyrean homesickness to tracks like "Dream Silver" which sounds like a far-off alien trying to speak to us about the whole universe with the musical language of recent or nearby popular culture we might understand. There are sweet, panoramic slices of Shostakovich-like brassy-synth blasts in the opening tracks "Barely Dawn" and "Playland", as well as allographic fantasy merging a vibe of Baudelaire's green meadows with haunting psychic dilation in "Glass Tower"; and too, the simple yet exotic alterity and fantastical mesmerization of "Night Walk." Various Seasides dazzles with its distinguished ingenuity inspiring repeated listening, as it is a both beguiling and sophisticated enough to be played again and again, encompassing atmosphere or more casual appreciation. It is the best thing that Talkdemonic has released so far, bringing O'Connor's already formidable talents and fresh experiences with crafting his new soundtrack skills into creating a personalized overplus of atmosphere, evoking a resplendently aquatic realm. This LP is a limited edition of 500 and pressed on marbled purple vinyl.

ROCK/POP

The Verve Pipe, 'Threads' LP

Threads is the newest album from the multiplatinum alternative rock band The Verve Pipe, recognized worldwide for their radio hits "Photograph" "Colorful" "Never Let You Down" and the #1 multi-format smash "The Freshmen." This new album is distinguished by its masterful writing and brilliant musical arrangements and performances. Inspired by a Japanese legend of a red thread of fate that connects us all to those who will play an important role in our lives, songwriters Brian Vander Ark and Channing Lee weave this theme symbolically in and out of each of the new 12 original songs as they tell stories of love, heartbreak, abuse, addiction, hope and revenge. Threads is a powerful testament to one of the preeminent alternative rock bands who continue to create dynamic original songs that deliver both musically and lyrically.

While we are at it, let's look at two titles that have long been out of stock but finally are here once again.

ROCK/POP

Roky Erickson & The Explosives, Halloween

Nobody had ever heard anything like the late Roky Erickson when he and his 13th Floor Elevators burst out of Austin, Texas onto the psychedelic scene in 1966 with their scary nugget, You're Gonna Miss Me. A decade later, the power-popping Explosives re-ignited the Austin flame, infusing tight Beatlesque rhythms with the passionate fury of their Elevator hero. By 1979, it was downright inevitable that they come together as a tight quartet. Halloween captures the live experience of Roky and The Explosives from their powerful first cycle, 1979-1981. Explosives drummer Freddie Steady Krc has handpicked the tracks, most unreleased, including the only performance of The Beatles' "I've Just Seen a Face." The psychedelic package (updated cover by San Francisco poster artist, Dennis Loren) includes previously unpublished photos plus a complete history of the band's performances from those three amazing years.

Low Roar, maybe tomorrow... .

Ever the nomad, in 2020 Ryan Karazija found himself someplace new with a piano. The batch of songs he wrote quickly coalesced into maybe tomorrow... Collaborating with Mike Lindsay and Andrew Scheps (the same team since "0"), Low Roar's fifth full length studio album took shape. Ryan's voice as a singer and a songwriter comes through strongly, making this instantly recognizable as a Low Roar record, but there is also something new, with expansive arrangements, intricate vocals, live brass and ever-present wind chimes. maybe tomorrow... is a beautiful record, meant to be listened to in one sitting, and it will transport you.

Roky Erickson & The Explosives "Halloween". The gift that keeps on giving. On his return home to Austin from San Francisco in the summer of 1979, Roky Erickson, legendary lead singer of the 13th Floor Elevators teamed up with a trio of rockers known as The Explosives. They would turn in almost three years of fiery performances all over Texas and California. This compilation of live recordings from 1979-1981 has stayed in print since 2008. It's been a steady seller and jewel in the SteadyBoy Records crown. The good folks at SteadyBoy decided to freshen up the packaging from jewel case to a sweet digipack with some new artwork by legendary graphics whiz, Dennis Loren. These tracks were carefully chosen from hours and hours of live recordings by SteadyBoy president/Explosives co-founding member Freddie Steady Krc. A rockin' record of Roky & the Explosives unique brand of rock with a horror psych twist. Grab a copy for yourself and every night can be Halloween!
